RIX CENTRE
FOR LEADERSHIP

Society is facing complex challenges from climate change, growing divisiveness and economic inequalities, supply chain issues and labour shortages. Now more than ever, engaged leaders with new skills and knowledge, who contribute to their communities are key to a stronger and more inclusive future.

The Greater Vancouver Board of Trade is committed to building thriving communities. The late Dr. Don Rix, a renowned philanthropist and Governor of the Board of Trade, was dedicated to supporting the development of young people. Through his generosity, the Rix Centre for Corporate Leadership Endowment was established in 2009 to support emerging leaders.

Through the Rix Centre for Leadership, the Greater Vancouver Board of Trade has built on that vision and launched the Engaged Leadership Program. Through education, training and mentorship this unique program will support the development of future leaders, enabling them to become engaged citizens making positive impacts on their communities.

The program will provide Resilient Leadership training, Mentorship, and Community Engagement opportunities for our future leaders.

Why participate:

- Become a resilient leader
- Make a greater impact in your community
- Connect with and learn from community leaders

Program Structure

Curated content for emerging leaders.

The Engaged Leadership Program consists of 25-35 hours of course material, community engagement, and roundtables with high-profile business leaders over a 6-month period. All program activities will be scheduled beginning in January and participants are required to attend all courses and roundtables and to participate in events and community outreach activities. This highly interactive program is delivered through a hybrid model of in-person and online.
